EMBLEM

FIRST The lightning flash indicates the numerical designation of the squadron. The elements depicted in the insignia are symbolic of all the conditions met by a weather squadron in its attempt to make accurate weather forecasts. (Approved, 21 December 1943, Reinstated and modified, 9 Dec 1993)

SECOND Against the sphere shape which simulates the, the flaunches, alluding to support, form the figure "one" and indicate the suit's numerical designation while suggesting worldwide support capabilities both day and night denoted by the light and deep blue. The U. S. Strike Command is represented by the red embattled base strewn with gold arrowheads symbolizing the combined strength and courage of ground and air forces. The sun and the rainbow refer to various weather conditions and the fleur-de-lis commemorates Air Weather Service and its accomplishments in serving the military of our nation. The emblem bears the Air Force-colors of golden yellow and ultramarine blue. (Approved, 26 May 1967)
