EMBLEM

33 Pursuit Squadron emblem

33 Tactical Reconnaissance Training Squadron

33 Tactical Fighter Squadron emblem

33 Special Operations Squadron emblem: On a disc Azure, a gryphon clawed foot from sinister

Proper, all within a narrow border Yellow. Attached above the disc, a Blue scroll edged with a narrow Yellow border and inscribed "VIGILANTIA FIDA VELOX IUSTITIA" in Yellow letters. Attached below the disc, a Blue scroll edged with a narrow Yellow border and inscribed "33D SPECIAL OPERATIONS SQ" in Yellow letters. SIGNIFICANCE: Ultramarine blue and Air Force yellow are the Air Force colors. Blue alludes to the sky, the primary theater of Air Force operations. Yellow refers to the sun and the excellence required of Air Force personnel. The gryphon is a legendary guardian with the body of a lion (King of Beasts) and the head, wings and claws of an eagle (King of Birds). The gryphon soars effortlessly and gracefully at high altitudes searching for enemies and guarding its lair, using its claws to attack and kill any and all threats. The gryphon's claws and the motto combine to symbolize the Squadron's mission—soaring above the battlefield, ever vigilant for threats which are instantly removed upon discovery. OPERATIONS

Constructed facilities, maintained aircraft, and functioned as a flying training unit, 1917-1918.

Demobilized on 14 April 1919 at Mitchel Field, NY, as the 33 Aero Squadron. Reconstituted in the Regular Army on 24 March 1923 as the 33 Pursuit Squadron, assigned to the 8th Pursuit Group, and allotted to the Sixth Corps Area. Designated Active Associate was the 17th Pursuit Squadron 1923-27. Withdrawn from the Sixth Corps Area on 28 February 1927 and allotted to the Ninth Corps Area. Withdrawn from the Ninth Corps Area on 1 September 1928 and allotted to the Eighth Corps Area. Concurrently, relieved from assignment to the 8th Pursuit Group and assigned to the 17th Pursuit Group.

Organized by June 1929 with Organized Reserve personnel as a RAI unit with headquarters at Kelly Field, TX. Organized Reserve officers assigned to the unit participated in summer training at Kelly Field 1929-31. Activated on 25 June 1932, less Reserve personnel, at Langley Field, VA. Relieved from assignment to the 17th Pursuit Group on 1 March 1935 and assigned to the 8th Pursuit Group. Redesignated as the 33 Pursuit Squadron (Fighter) on 6 December 1939. Redesignated as the 33 Pursuit Squadron (Interceptor) on 12 March 1940. Transferred on 14 November 1940 to Mitchel Field, NY. Ordered to Iceland and departed 27 July 1941 on the U.S.S. Wasp. Arrived off Iceland on 6 August 1941, and flying off the Wasp, landed at an airfield near Reykjavik. Assigned on arrival to the Iceland Base. Performed air defense for Iceland, Aug 1941-May 1945.

Not operational, 1953 and 1956.

The initial AF order called for a total of 26 RF-4C aircraft. The first of these took to the air for the first time on May 18, 1964 Initial plans called for the RF-4C to equip fourteen Tactical Air Command squadrons with the first to be activated by early 1965 At it were, the first production aircraft were quickly assigned to the 33 TRTS at Shaw AFB, S Carolina, on September 24, 1964. They remained at Shaw for the following year while minor sensor system problems were overcome, eventually transferring to the first operational RF-4C squadron, the 16th 1 HS I. This unit was declared combat ready in August of 1965 under the auspices of the 460th TRW, and on October 30, 1965, nine of its RF-4C's were deployed to Tan Son Nhut AB, Vietnam. One day later, it became the first RF-4 unit to enter combat in SEA.

During 1969-1982, conducted RF-4 aircrew training in tactical reconnaissance tactics and techniques.

1-7 Sep 83 An HC-130 from the 33d Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron participated in a search and rescue mission for Korean Air Lines flight 007. The HC-130 was closely monitored by Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR) aircraft. It was later determined that a USSR fighter aircraft shot down the airliner near Sakhalin Island. A total of 269 persons perished, including 35 Americans.

Trained in tactical fighter missions designed to destroy enemy forces, 1985-1993.

The 33 Tactical Fighter Squadron participated in Quick Force 90-2, a multi-service training exercise that ran from April 27 until April 29, 1990. The exercise was sponsored by the U.S. Central Command Air Forces and was designed to coordinate various forces in a simulated warfare atmosphere. Quick Force brought together the same forces that were used in Southwest Asia.

Deployed aircrews and aircraft to Southwest Asia (SWA); participated in Operation Southern Watch over southern Iraq in support of United Nations operations, 1992-1993. Lt Col Gary L. North, commander of 33 Fighter Squadron, became the first F-16 pilot to score an aerial victory in SWA, 27 Dec 1992.

Air Force Special Operations Command activated the 33 Special Operations Squadron last Friday at Cannon AFB, N.M. The Clovis News Journal reported that day that the new unit will operate the MQ-9 Reaper unmanned aerial vehicle, which is already playing an important role in countering the Taliban in Afghanistan and insurgents in Iraq. "This unit is more than ready to answer our nation's call to duty," said Lt. Col. Michael Bruzzini, the squadron commander, at the activation ceremony. He added, "The MQ-9 is an awesome platform, but it is these individuals that will make our enemies truly fear the Reaper." Bruzzini said the squadron's members spent six months getting ready for the activation, operating out of no less than five locations to learn Reaper tactics, techniques, and procedures and mold themselves into a cohesive fighting force. AFSOC already operates the 3rd SOS, an MQ-1 Predator UAV unit, out of Cannon.

Starter-Generator Failure Caused Reaper Crash —A starter-generator failure caused the crash of an MQ-9A Reaper in February in the US Africa Command area of operations. The remotely piloted aircraft belonged to the 432nd Wing at Creech AFB, Nev., but was assigned to the 33 Expeditionary Special Operations Squadron, 435th Air Expeditionary Wing, when it crashed. It took off at 5:30 a.m. Zulu on Feb. 4 and flew normally for about three hours before the generator exhaust fan began to malfunction and the starter-generator failed, according to the report. The crew tried to fly the aircraft back to base and turned off equipment to maximize battery life, but the starter-generator failed again around 9:15 a.m. and could not be restarted. Instead, they programmed the Reaper to return to base. A second crew took control of the RPA around 10:30 a.m. and saw the battery power was very low, according to the report. The crew put the Reaper in a holding pattern, but the battery power was so low the aircraft could have become unstable, so the Joint Forces Air Component commander ordered the crew to fly it into international waters. This is the third time a failed starter-generator caused a Reaper to crash since December 2014. The first two happened just one day apart, the first on Dec. 11, 2014, and the second on Dec. 12, 2014. 2015
