OPERATIONS

The changing missions and personnel over the past forty years have characterized the headquarters element of the Oregon Air National Guard. Many of the challenges of new construction, aircraft conversion, etc., have been met and solved by the dedication of many who have been assigned or attached to the headquarters to provide the needed expertise and lead

HQ ORANG has been instrumental in the expansion of the Air Guard within the state to four operational locations.

HQ ORANG has seen the State Legislature pass bills defining the responsibility for the use of Guardsmen called to state active duty providing State tax: credit tuition assistance; a state uniform code of military justice; and numerous other bills that enhance Guard status within the state.

As HQ ORANG faces the next challenges, we will need to equip our supervisors and managers with improved skills to effectively and efficiently manage an even More complex and technically demanding mission.

2005 5 Sep Forty-eight Oregon ANG personnel assigned to the 272nd Combat Communications Squadron, 116th Air Control Squadron, 270th Air Traffic Control Squadron, and the 125th Special Tactics Squadron deployed in SAD to NAS New Orleans to help provide a variety of communications capability for the city.
